"With so many avid golfers at Baker Tilly Malaysia, this relationship is a great match for us," Heng said in a statement.

"It is also in line with how we value talent and continuously invest in their growth.

"More importantly, we want to be able to play a part in supporting our young athletes' success," he added.

Ling turned professional in 2017 and has since played on the Korean LPGA, China LPGA and Taiwan LPGA. She is now competing in the Ladies European Tour.

In expressing her joy at being supported by Baker Tilly Malaysia, Ling said it has been an uphill challenge pursuing her passion due to the pandemic.

"I am confident that this partnership will bring me many steps closer to achieving my dream and to be an encouragement to fellow athletes in Malaysia," she said.
